BEYOND THE LIGHT: BUILDING HOMES, NURTURING TRADITIONS AND INSPIRING NEW BEGINNINGS

Diwali may have passed, but the light it brings into our lives continues to inspire us long after the celebrations have ended. The festival is a reminder that hope, togetherness, compassion and new beginnings are values that deserve to be celebrated every day.

For me, Diwali has always represented something deeper than the illumination of homes and streets. It reflects our collective spirit, our cultural roots and the importance of staying connected to the values that bring communities together.

At 99 Group, we endeavour to carry this spirit beyond the festive season through initiatives that create meaningful social connections. Our annual celebration, 'Apna Diya, Apni Diwali', was one such effort. This year's celebration was particularly special as we commemorated 150 years of Vande Mataram, honouring India's cultural heritage, national pride and the contributions of our great personalities.

The enthusiastic participation of guests, students and members of the community made the occasion truly memorable. Through cultural performances and creative activities, the initiative provided an opportunity for people, especially the younger generation, to reconnect with our traditions and appreciate the values that shape our identity. I extend my heartfelt gratitude to everyone who contributed to making this celebration a success.

As we reflect on the festival, I am reminded of the deeper meaning of a home. A home is not simply a physical structure; it is the foundation of relationships, the keeper of memories and the space where generations build their dreams. Every family deserves a place where they feel secure, comfortable and connected.

This belief lies at the heart of our approach to real estate. At 99 Realty, we recognise that every property represents someone's aspiration, every investment reflects someone's future plans, and every home becomes a part of someone's life story. Our responsibility, therefore, extends beyond developing properties. It is about building trust, understanding aspirations and contributing to the growth of the communities we serve.

As Eastern India's real estate landscape continues to evolve, we see tremendous opportunities for planned development, better living spaces and sustainable urban growth. We remain committed to being a part of this transformation through customer-centric practices, responsible development and a vision that places people at the centre of progress.

I firmly believe that the true success of an organisation is measured not only by its achievements but also by the positive difference it creates in people's lives. This philosophy will continue to guide 99 Group in the years ahead. The diyas may have been put away, but their message must remain with us: to spread light, nurture relationships and build a brighter future together.

With gratitude to everyone who has been part of our journey, we look forward to creating many more meaningful milestones together.

CMD, 99 Group of Companies

A SMARTER APPROACH TO HOMEOWNERSHIP IN A CHANGING REAL ESTATE MARKET

Every festive season brings with it a renewed sense of optimism. Diwali, in particular, reminds us of the importance of new beginnings, financial planning and the aspirations we build for ourselves and our families. For many people, these aspirations are closely connected to owning a home — a milestone that represents stability, security and a sense of achievement.

However, the journey of buying a home has changed considerably over the years. Today's homebuyers are more informed, more selective and increasingly conscious of the decisions they make. They do not simply look at the size of a property or its advertised price. They evaluate the neighbourhood, connectivity, infrastructure, developer credibility, construction quality and the potential value of their investment over time.

This shift is making the real estate sector more competitive, but it is also creating an opportunity for genuine, customer-focused businesses to distinguish themselves. In my view, the future of real estate will belong to organisations that understand the buyer's perspective and make the property-buying journey more transparent, accessible and informed.

One of the biggest challenges for a prospective homebuyer is navigating the volume of information available in the market. Multiple projects, varying price points, competing claims and changing regulations can make decision-making complicated. This is where professional real estate consultation becomes important. Buyers need more than property listings; they need relevant information, honest guidance and clarity at every stage of their journey.

At 99Realty, our approach is centred on understanding these requirements. We believe that every buyer has a different objective. For some, it is finding a comfortable home for their family; for others, it is making a long-term investment or securing a property for future generations. Our responsibility is to understand these individual aspirations and help customers explore opportunities that align with their needs and expectations.
We are also witnessing interesting developments across Eastern India's real estate landscape. Growing urbanisation, improving connectivity, infrastructure development and expanding economic activities are gradually reshaping the property markets in cities such as Ranchi, Jamshedpur, Dhanbad and other emerging destinations. These markets offer opportunities, but informed decision-making remains essential. Location, project fundamentals, legal documentation and long-term usability should always take priority over short-term market excitement.

As an industry, we must also recognise that trust cannot be established through advertising alone. It is built through consistent communication, responsible practices and the ability to stand by the commitments made to customers. Every interaction matters, from the first property enquiry to the final stages of a transaction.

As we move beyond the festive season and towards the closing months of the year, it is a good time for buyers and investors to reassess their property goals. Whether planning to purchase a first home, upgrade an existing one or explore an investment opportunity, the most important step is to make a decision based on research, realistic expectations and a clear understanding of one's priorities.

At the end of the day, real estate is not just about buying and selling properties. It is about helping people make decisions that shape their financial future and the lives they build around them.
At 99Realty, we remain committed to making those decisions more informed and the property-buying experience more meaningful.

M.S. Alam (Shail)
Director, 99Realty

EVERY ENQUIRY HAS A STORY: UNDERSTANDING THE JOURNEY OF A HOMEBUYER

Behind every property enquiry, there is a person with a purpose, a family with a dream or an investor planning for the future. While real estate is often associated with properties, locations and financial decisions, the real journey begins with understanding people. Every customer comes with different expectations, priorities and questions, and recognising these differences is what makes the property-buying experience meaningful.

Working closely with customers has given me a valuable understanding of how people approach one of the most important decisions of their lives. For some, buying a home is about finding a better lifestyle and a comfortable space for their family. For others, it is about securing their savings, creating an additional source of income or making a long-term investment. Regardless of the objective, every customer deserves patience, attention and the right information before making a decision.

One of the most important aspects of property sales is listening. Customers may initially express an interest in a particular location or budget, but understanding their actual requirements often involves asking the right questions. Their preferred lifestyle, family needs, financial planning and future expectations all play an important role in identifying suitable opportunities. A successful property interaction is not simply about presenting available options; it is about helping customers understand which options genuinely align with their goals.

Another important part of this process is coordination. From managing enquiries and arranging property visits to maintaining communication between customers, sales teams and other departments, every stage requires attention and timely follow-ups. Even a small gap in communication can create uncertainty for a prospective buyer. Consistency, clarity and responsiveness therefore become essential in building confidence throughout the customer journey.

The festive season, particularly Diwali, also brings an interesting perspective to property buying. It is traditionally associated with prosperity, new beginnings and important family decisions. For many people, purchasing a home during or around this period represents a fresh chapter in life. However, beyond festive sentiment, every property decision should be supported by proper research, financial readiness and a clear understanding of the project.

At 99Realty, teamwork plays an important role in ensuring that customer requirements are addressed effectively. Sales coordination is not an individual effort; it involves continuous collaboration, information sharing and a common commitment to customer satisfaction. When different teams work together efficiently, the entire experience becomes smoother for the customer.

I believe that the real measure of success in sales is not limited to the number of enquiries handled or transactions completed. It is also reflected in the confidence customers place in us, the relationships we maintain and the experience they carry forward. A customer who feels properly guided is more likely to remember the experience long after the transaction is complete.

As the real estate market continues to grow and customer expectations evolve, the importance of personalised communication and dependable service will only increase. Our responsibility is to make every interaction more meaningful and ensure that customers feel informed and confident at every step.

Celebrating the spirit of Indian culture, national pride and social harmony, 99 Group of Companies organised its week-long Diwali initiative, 'Apna Diya, Apni Diwali', at the 99G Corporate Office premises in Ramaji Complex, Memco More, Dhanbad. Running from October 31 to November 7, 2026, the event brought together public representatives, distinguished guests, social workers, educational institutions, students and members of the community through a series of cultural and creative activities.

This year's celebration carried particular significance as it marked 150 years of Vande Mataram. Reflecting the theme, the auditorium was specially decorated with elements representing India's freedom struggle, national unity and cultural heritage. Through the initiative, 99 Group sought to create a platform that connected festive celebrations with the country's historical legacy while encouraging younger generations to appreciate India's traditions and values.

Distinguished Guests from Public Life, Administration and Society

The week-long celebration witnessed the participation of several prominent public representatives, elected leaders, senior administrative officials and distinguished members of civil society, reflecting the event's broad community outreach.

Among the notable attendees were Shri Pappu Yadav, Member of Parliament from Purnia; Dr. Jairam Kumar Mahato, MLA from Dumri; Shri Mathura Prasad Mahato, MLA from Tundi; Shri Arup Chatterjee, MLA from Nirsa; and Shri Chandradev Mahato, MLA from Sindri. Former Dhanbad MP Shri P.N. Singh also attended the celebrations. Their participation highlighted the significance of cultural initiatives in bringing together representatives from different spheres of public life.

The event also welcomed Shri Ashish Gangwar, IAS, Municipal Commissioner of Dhanbad; Shri Sanjiv Singh, Mayor of Dhanbad; and Smt. Sharda Singh, Chairperson of Dhanbad Zila Parishad. Senior leader Shri Ranvijay Singh, JMM Central Committee member Smt. Neelam Mishra and social worker Shri Uday Pratap Singh were among the other distinguished personalities who participated in the celebrations.

On the administrative and institutional front, Shri Ritwik Srivastava, Dhanbad City SP; Prof. Sukumar Mishra, Director of IIT (ISM) Dhanbad; and Smt. Moomal Rajpurohit, SRP Dhanbad, were also associated with the programme.

Several other prominent personalities, including social workers Shri Shantanu Chandra and Smt. Pinki Gupta, Dr. Amit Ranjan, Shri Mithilesh Singh, Shri Rajesh Tiwari, Shri Shailendra Sharma, Shri Bhanu Soni and Shri Rakesh Pathak, attended different sessions throughout the week.

On the cultural front, representatives of St. Xavier International School, including Shri Satyam Rai, participated in the programme alongside students who presented cultural performances. The presence of these distinguished guests and community representatives added to the event's significance and reinforced its objective of bringing people together through India's cultural heritage and shared traditions.

A Platform for Culture, Heritage and National Pride

Since 2018, 99 Group of Companies has been organising cultural celebrations around Diwali through its initiative, 'Apna Diya, Apni Diwali', with the objective of promoting India's cultural heritage, traditional values and national pride. Over the years, the programme has evolved into an annual platform bringing together people from different walks of life through cultural activities, creative expressions and themes reflecting India's social and national identity.

Each edition has carried a distinct theme, connecting the spirit of Diwali with wider cultural and national narratives. Last year's celebration, centred on Operation Sindoor, received an encouraging response from visitors and participants. The theme highlighted national pride, courage and the spirit of the nation, making the celebration particularly meaningful for attendees.

The programme encouraged participation across generations, creating an environment where cultural expression, learning and community engagement became an integral part of the Diwali celebration.

Dhanteras Property Exhibition Records 207 Bookings in a Single Day
Alongside its cultural initiative, 99 Group recorded a significant business achievement during the Dhanteras property exhibition organised as part of its festive activities.

The exhibition recorded 207 property bookings in a single day, marking a notable milestone for the group. The development reflected strong customer participation during the festive period and highlighted the continued interest in property ownership and real estate investment.
The exhibition brought multiple real estate offerings from the group's portfolio into focus, providing prospective buyers with an opportunity to explore available options during the auspicious occasion of Dhanteras. The achievement added an important business dimension to the week-long celebration, connecting the spirit of festive prosperity with the aspirations of homebuyers and property investors.

Extending the Spirit Beyond Diwali

The concluding phase of the programme focused on bringing together the different aspects of the celebration—cultural awareness, social harmony, national pride and community participation.
CEO Ram Pratap Singh expressed gratitude to the distinguished guests, participants, students, visitors and members of the organising team for their contribution to the initiative. He reiterated the group's commitment to organising meaningful activities that encourage cultural awareness, social responsibility and community engagement.

The event also conveyed a message of celebrating an environmentally conscious Diwali, encouraging people to embrace cleanliness, responsible practices, art of diya making and self-reliance.
Through 'Apna Diya, Apni Diwali', 99 Group brought together the values of tradition and progress under one platform. The initiative reflected the belief that the significance of a festival extends beyond its celebrations—it lies in the connections it creates, the values it reinforces and the positive experiences it leaves behind.
For 99 Group, the successful completion of the week-long event, complemented by the Dhanteras property booking milestone, represented both meaningful community engagement and an encouraging business achievement during the festive season.
